

Zachary joined at inception and is the Head of Trading at TLG Capital. Zachary has been a credit and distressed trader for more than a decade, having started at Dresdner KleinWort in 2003 in the Credit Trading Division. He was involved in the first indices of credit derivatives and also authored a paper on credit risk valuation focused on credit default swaps & bond products. He was hired to Nomura to trade illiquid and volatile products and was also a trader for the Credit Product Groups at Toronto Dominion Securities where he managed interest rate exposure for the entire group. He has extensively commented for CNBC and other media publications as an expert on peripheral and hard to price debt/equity products. Zachary graduated with a MSc from Cass Business School at the age of 18 and was one of the youngest people in the country to win a first class honours at his undergraduate level.